

The Surgeon's Blade

By Aiden Robertson

Unsterile and unclean are past surgeries,
During the bubonic plague, a medical emergency.
Fourteenth-century Europe, a time
That ended with such grime.

Now, clean machines hospital halls line,
Beeping, buzzing, sterilely humming on time;
Medical care adequately to patients given,
Surgeries, appendectomies, and tumors ridden.

Artificial Intelligence, a friend or a foe?
What the future holds, we shall not know.
Robots doing surgeries or "AI" performing procedures,
ChatGPT may be recommending new surgical features.

From unsanitary conditions during the height of a plague,
to robots and AI keeping the future vague;
This profession continues to save.